one of the new york times 100 notable books of 2025 a kirkus reviews best book of 2025 the skipped history podcast best book of the year revelatory deeply researched and masterfully told brian goldstone new york times book review the explosive account of the arson wave that hit the bronx and other american cities in the 1970s and its legacy today ladies and gentlemen the bronx is burning that legendary and apocryphal phrase allegedly uttered by announcers during the 1977 world series as flames rose above yankee stadium seemed to encapsulate an entire era in this nation's urban history across that decade a wave of arson coursed through american cities destroying entire neighborhoods home to poor communities of color yet as historian bench ansfield demonstrates in born in flames the most destructive fires were not set by residents as is commonly assumed but by landlords looking to collect insurance payouts driven by perverse incentives new government sponsored insurance combined with tanking property values landlords hired torches mostly black and brown youth to set fires in the buildings sometimes with people still living in them tens of thousands of families lost their homes to these blazes yet for much of the 1970s tenant vandalism and welfare fraud stood as the prevailing explanations for the arson wave effectively indemnifying landlords ansfield s book based on a decade of research introduces the term brownlining for the destructive insurance practices imposed on poor communities of color under the guise of racial redress ansfield shows that as the fire industries finance insurance and real estate eclipsed manufacturing in the 1970s they began profoundly reshaping black and brown neighborhoods seeing them as easy sources of profit at every step ansfield charts the tenant led resistance movements that sprung up in the bronx and elsewhere as well as the explosion of popular culture around the fires from iconic movies like the towering inferno to hit songs such as disco inferno ultimately they show how similarly pernicious dynamics around insurance and race are still at play in our own era especially in regions most at risk of climate shocks an illustrated transcript of lizzie borden s 1983 film born in flames edited and designed by kaisa lassinaro it includes an interview with borden conducted in l a by lassinaro as well as the lyrics of undercover nation by the bloods and born in flames by red crayola kindly supplied by adele bertei and mayo thompson released as a motion picture in 1983 the film is a futuristic fable of feminist turmoil still brewing ten years after the second american revolution when adelaide norris the black radical founder of the woman s army is mysteriously killed a diverse coalition of women across all lines of race class and sexual preference emerges to blow the system apart with their fury growing and all peaceful options exhausted women overcome divisions of race class and sexual orientation to form a guerilla movement to take over control of the media the film poses the question of whether oppression against women will be eliminated under any kind of social system
