The Routledge Handbook of Behavioural Accounting Research covers a full range of theoretical, methodological, and statistical approaches relied upon by behavioural accounting researchers, giving the reader a good grounding in both theoretical perspectives and practical applications. Behavioural research is broadly defined as research focused at the individual or small group level, drawing mainly on theories from psychology, which is well established in the social sciences and has flourished in the field of accounting in recent decades. This updated edition maintains the structure of the original handbook and includes all the original chapters, which have been revised to reflect the current and evolving emphasis on the theories and tools employed in behavioural research and applied to the research in the accounting domain. In addition to the updated original chapters, eight new chapters have been included, reflecting the expansion of the topics, theories, and methodologies, and presenting developmental advice for behavioural accounting researchers. The new topic and theory chapters include chapters outlining our progress in research on the accounting for sustainability, language effects in financial disclosures, advances in policy-related research in financial accounting, the impact of algorithms and artificial intelligence, and the role of data analytics and data visualization on decision making in accounting and auditing. Two additional method chapters include a primer on Hayes process models in mediation and moderation, as well as a new chapter outlining best practices in the design and implementation of experiential questionnaires. Finally, a chapter has been added providing guidance and advice on responding to reviewers' comments to complement the first edition chapter on preparing a review. This book is a vital introduction for advanced doctoral students in behavioural accounting research, as well as a valuable resource for established behavioural accounting researchers, providing a comprehensive guide to the development and implementation of a behavioural accounting research project.

The complexity of human behavior challenges our explanatory powers, yet in this day and age we desperately try to manage and control the behavior of our corporate citizens through rules, codes, systems, and procedures. Alike this study is an illustration that true human behavior cannot simply be controlled by more of such rules; instead, it is driven by many psychological, cultural, contextual, and environmental factors. The focus of this study is the influence of cross-national cultural differences in the context of the professional behavior of auditors. Based on the central question, "Is auditors' professional behavior affected by cross-national cultural differences, and if so, how?" being based on grounded theory, in part validated within an international accounting organization, this study is the first to provide a more profound, in-depth, and contextualized analysis and understanding of the effect of cross-national cultural differences on the behavior of professionals in general and that of auditors in particular.
