unsettling nostalgia in Spain and Chile: longing for resistance in literature and film reframes nostalgia to analyze how writers and filmmakers have responded to 20th century dictatorial violence and loss in Spain and Chile by reaching beyond reductive definitions that limit nostalgia to a conservative desire to defend traditional power hierarchies. Lisa DiGiovanni captures the complexity of a critically conscious type of longing and form of transmission that she terms unsettling nostalgia using literature and film. DiGiovanni illustrates how unsettling nostalgia imbues representations of pre-dictatorial mobilization during the Second Spanish Republic (1931-1939) and the Chilean Popular Unity (1970-1973) as well as depictions of clandestine resistance to the Franco dictatorship (1939-1975) and the Pinochet regime (1973-1989). Positive memories of efforts to upend power hierarchies coexist with retrospective critiques that fissure romanticized views of revolutionary struggle. Unsettling nostalgic works engender deeper understandings of the complexities of political movements and how stories of resistance are meaningful today by calling attention to the parallels between nostalgic modes that resist multiple injustices based on gender, class, and sexuality. This book traces an evocative continuity between Spain and Chile that goes beyond the initial work that links forms of militaristic authoritarianism. Scholars of Latin American studies, film studies, literary studies, history, women's and gender studies, memory studies, and rhetoric will find this book particularly useful.

Delving into the uneasy relationship between English and Spanish in the United States of America, this book approaches specific topics from a variety of perspectives ranging from the more cultural to the more linguistic. The contributions explore the problems arising in Puerto Rico as a consequence of the unique political status of the island, the linguistic peculiarities of codeswitching and its use in legal and medical contexts where interpreting is necessary, and in educational contexts with heritage language students, the non-use and the ideological implications of translation in colonial museums, the connections between language ethnicity and gender identities in the south west and the role played by the hispanic press in promoting intercultural dialogue in the new york city area engaging with previous publications the book examines these topics from an interdisciplinary standpoint offers new insights into the problems of this cultural and linguistic contact and suggests new areas of research this book was originally published as a special issue of language and intercultural communication the research presented in this volume covers first language acquisition second language acquisition language heritage and language impairment papers in this collection use a variety of experimental methods such as eye tracking elicitation tasks production tasks administered off line and untimed transcriptions of spontaneous speech production elicitation truth value judgement tasks standardized tests and multiple choice tasks the studies included in this book try to cover most of the methods used in first and second language acquisition in typical and atypical populations this book will be useful for linguists speech therapists and psycholinguists working on first second and impaired language acquisition
