by January 2012 all major economies apart from the US will provide financial reports using international financial reporting standards (IFRS). This book sets out the key differences between IFRS and US GAAP from a practitioner's perspective. Although financial analysts will also benefit from the material presented, the financial crisis has been attributed to, among other things, a perceived lack of transparency in the financial markets. In general, transparency implies an ability to see the reported results of an entity's financial activities clearly and to use these results in making investment decisions. At question is the belief that transparency in financial reporting will lead to transparency in financial markets. Unfortunately, this link may be more subjective than most of us wish. Ruth Ann McEwen presents an analysis of reporting issues affecting transparency under IFRS compared with US GAAP and suggests areas of concern for preparers and users of financial reports, providing an invaluable guide for all accountancy professionals. The book also contains a technical analysis of major accounting issues raised by convergence and indicates areas of interest during initial adoption of IFRS by US entities. This authoritative book provides all the essential information required for advanced practitioners and analysts at this critical juncture.
